Facebook, Instagram, WhatsApp and Messenger are coming back online now. Sorry for the disruption today -- I know how much you rely on our services to stay connected with the people you care about.

Thanks Mark! Glad it's all good now.
For those who don't know, it was caused (as far as i have heard) due to routine BGP update. So what is BGP? (Border Gateway Protocol)
In simplest form, (& not to bore you guys). Think of it like a map of internet (like where is what located) & each map is controlled by large numbers of ISPs.
No single company has the entire map, but if they are "partnered" or peers they can talk to each other to determine where to send the data packets.
For example. Lets say i am in Dallas & my browser (On Comcast Network) is trying to reach a website that's in Beijing on a local ISP there.
Lets say, My ISP doesn't peer with to local ISP in Beijing directly but... At&t peers with both mine & one local in Beijing . So once i send a request, my ISP talks to "network map" that's derived from BGP to find what's the shortest way to reach Beijing to that specific site, & an automatic system determines that its best to drop data with at&t & then at&t takes it to the local ISP in Beijing that it partners with.
Tldr: fb was doing some routine work on updating some information on a network map called BGP & it got messed up. Its all good now!

It is okay. It happens to such big social media businesses. However, you should make sure people's privacy is not compromised.

Dear Mark Zuckerberg & team at Facebook App
Congratulations & thank you. It's wonderful to be back.
Much appreciated and it's a massive experience. Hope we all learn and the world had learnt your endurance and our collective positive quests on facebook rather than only everything in existence as such have too.
Like the nature of everything, I am sure this rapidly evolving facebook commune has its down sides. but I am sure like many things have beautifully evolved in the past many years, so will this outrage last past few hours will bring to our collective human quests and our evolution as collective human and bring desirable humility and embrace change.

Thank you Mr Mark Zuckerberg for giving us a #SocialMedia breather
I slept so well last night with no pings from Facebook, WhatsApp, Instagram or Messenger
But seriously, it wasn't so cool on your side to be down for so long
Unless you've made some really interesting upgrades to all these services so that we can enjoy sharing stories with our friends even more, then that's cool with me
