Power down, Pisces. It's your official hibernation season until February 18, and a well-timed one at that. With the Sun sinking through Aquarius and your restful, healing twelfth house, you're at your most reflective now. For you, the twelfth sign of the zodiac, this is your native turf. And while dragging yourself out of bed could be an epic feat some days, your imagination and intuition are at peak performance levels. Lead with your right brain and devote the first three weeks of February to as much creativity and rejuvenation as you possibly can.

The February 4 Aquarius new moon is an ideal day to start an artistic or spiritual project. If you haven't launched that daily meditation practice or kept your New Year's resolution to journal every morning, now's the time. Most Pisces never met a vision board they didn't like, so turn on your favorite playlist, pour some wine (or brew a pot of tea) and let the manifesting begin!

You could make an event out of it because on February 5, the Chinese Lunar New Year begins. Say goodbye to the territorial and guarded Dog and welcome the communal Earth Pig! For the next year, prioritizing pleasure is the key—and most Pisces don't need any extra prodding for that. Whether you're working hard or planning the party of the century, the "more is the merrier" Pig will help lighten your load by making it a fun team effort. Just keep tabs on your budget since the decadence can be a drain if you're not careful. (Oops, you overspent again!)

Another reason to watch your wallet? From January 1 to February 14, energizer Mars making its biannual blaze through Aries and your finance-focused second house, which could burn up funds. While there might be some stressful expenses, Mars in Aries also ramps up your earning potential. Stressed about money? Sometimes necessity is the mother of invention.

How I got into kpop

So one day I was talking to my friend Mya in new York and she wanted to show me a video. She showed me bts dope/sick mv and trust me that's when everything sparked...

I started listening to more songs by that group and then I decided to branch off to different groups like for example, Exo, momoland, blackpink, and red velvet. And after that I started learning how to sing them because I listen to the songs a lot I would sound out the lyrics in romanji and therefore I could start singing it. Then there was an opportunity for me to let my inner kpop shine....

It was a kpop dance group and of course I had to join it and after a while I learnt the moves to some songs and later on I got the hang of it and I keep getting better each time I go to practice and that my friends is how I got into kpop. I am currently in the Kpop Dance group at Queen Elizabeth Secondary. I will be performing at Kinesthetics Dance Show on January 11th at 6pm. The show will be held at the school.
