

Creative Essay Writers

An essay is a creative scientific work, which expresses the personal opinion of the author on a specific issue or occasion, and does not pretend to its full interpretation. It is something in between a scientific publication and an essay. It is not necessary to strictly follow the rules of storytelling here, as in the report. The style of presentation is scientific and publicistic. It is possible to insert quotations in an essay, but their total volume should not exceed one third of the entire article. That is, it is necessary to work with different literature, to study the opinions of the authors on this topic before outlining your position and presenting it in writing.

Small volume - 3-7 printed sheets of A4.

Specific topic, subjective interpretation. Only one question is highlighted, one thought. It needs to be developed and an opinion expressed.

Free composition. This genre has no formal boundaries. It often goes against the laws of logic.

It is not forced to express itself. The author establishes trustful communication with the reader, avoiding complex, incomprehensible constructions.

Free possession of the subject. Ready work to provide a multidimensional view of the problem that led to reflection.

A semantic unity. Must be the coherence of the main theses and statements, arguments and associations.

Essay writing rules

The rules according to which the authors write essays:

Title is mandatory.

Structure - arbitrary or by request. It is not obligatory to make conclusions at the end, but they can be presented in the text itself.

Argumentation may be made before the problem is formulated.

Sufficient number of details. All statements are supported by examples.

When writing an essay it is important to check the original version. Our authors develop arguments, grind the main ideas and arrange them in a strict sequence, accompanied by auxiliary examples.
