

A full stop is a little pause after a sentence that signifies the end of a sentence. The full stop also shows when you should breathe and take a pause before reading on. Full stops are found in every kind of English writing across Australia. A full stop is one of the most important aspects of English writing.

Full Stops

How to use a full stop in your writing?

You use a full stop when you are putting a pause between sentences.

It signals the end of your sentence

And lastly, it tells you when to take a breath

Activity

Correct the wrong sentences. Which sentences are correct? Write the answers in your exercise book:

- Jeff walked. his dog
- Should. we get some ice cream
- Ice cream is the best

- We're going to the cinemas.