

An apostrophe is a punctuation mark (') used to indicate either possession (e.g. Harry 's book; boys' coats) or used in contractions to indicate missing letters (e.g. Can't; won't). Although, a lot of people misuse apostrophes. The most common of these mistakes is (it's), when describing how 'it' is in possession of something. This is too similar to 'it', meaning 'it has', so when trying to describe the possession of something, always say 'its', not 'it's'.

Activity

Correct these sentences in your exercise books. Rewrite them with apostrophes in the correct spots:

- 1- Dont eat that, it's poisonous!
- 2- Thats Jamies ball.
- 3- Its a rhinoceros.