

A capital letter is an enlarged version of a lowercase letter, e.g. a-A. They usually occur after a full-stop. And they signal the start of a new sentence. Also they are used at the first letter of names (people/ places) to show respect to the person/ place you are writing about.

Activity

Write 'yes' or 'no' next to these sentences in an exercise book to signal if they are correct or incorrect. Rewrite the incorrect ones with the correct capital letters:

- 1- charlie was the class clown this year! =
- 2- America is a warm country.
- 3- we should go to England.
- 4- charlie doesn't like ice cream...
- 5- The water park is a fun place to go.
