

FORGOTTEN
MEMORIES

Life is like a roller coaster live it, be happy, enjoy life.

_Avril Lavigne

The secret of happiness is renunciation.

_Dale Breckenridge Carnegie

Contents

- I Enjoy Your Life
- II Part-Time Job
- III Relationship

1 FORGOTTEN MEMORIES

Enjoy Your Life

On a clear day, a rascal was born in GwangJu.

He likes to play. He played soccer, game, tag, etc. The child was just having fun. He is me. When I was in elementary school, I had fun and various experiences of playing.

First, I played with my friends in the playground. I was playing tag. But my friends and I saw a torn playground floor by chance. The floor of the playground is covered with urethane, so we touched the floor. As I touched it, we tore the torn floor more. After all, we tore all of the playground floor. So my father paid for damages. I went to this playground recently. It is okay now.

Second, When I was eleven years old, I attended a Chinese class. My house was far from there, so I should take the bus. It hadn't been long since I moved. I was more familiar with the neighborhood with the class than with the new neighborhood I just moved in. So I always expected to go to the academy because I didn't study in the academy. I skipped a class for 2 month. I just played a game of slap-match, tag with a neighborhood child. I went to a Swing Playground more than three times a week. Do Pyeong-ri is a very small village so the biggest playground in this village is famous. The Swing Playground was a famous playground for children in Pyeong-ri. Many children gathered in this playground. Many children gathered at this playground as if they had promised. Everyday, Even though we played the same, we felt fresh and fun. We made friends and played with new friends. As we played every day, we got various things to play. I told my parents every day, "I'll be back after the academy" but I played every day. One day two months later, my parents talked on the phone with the academy teacher. I guessed something was wrong. My guess was right. I was very scolded by my parents. I thought this is what it's like to be beaten to death. Still, it was better than I thought to exchange two months of sweet travel for being scolded. It was an interesting two months for me. I like to play like this.

Third, I started going to the PC room in 5th grade in elementary school. I didn't play various games. I only played one game, League of Legends. I played games for at least an hour a day. I didn't do it to be a pro gamer. It was just because the game was fun and I liked to play. After graduating from elementary school, I was the same when I entered middle school. Although the time to play games has decreased a lot compared to before, I still played games a lot. The game League of Legends was like a girlfriend to me. We'd been dating since we were 10. Sometimes I got tired of it, but nevertheless, I didn't hate LOL. I always fought LOL, but I always came back to LOL. League of Legends was more attractive than I thought. But now I broke up with LOL. I didn't have enough time and energy to play games. I had to study, go to school, and there were many things to do. I kept cutting back on playing games. So I don't play games now. Still, I want to play games a lot. However, while attending Dreamy School, I decided to erase my LOL ID. It has become awkward with LOL.

Fourth, I have a lot of experience of getting hurt while playing. I often get hurt while having so much fun. It was when I was in kindergarten. I was playing as usual at the neighborhood playground. A friend was trying to climb a hill on a bicycle. He said the bike didn't move as he went up the hill. He was riding his bike up the hill. He said suddenly the bike didn't move. I thought the bike was broken. So, to fix the bike, I touched the chain. But as soon as I touched the chain, he pedaled hard. The bicycle moved forward. But my hand was caught on the chain. Three fingers were torn and I had to go to the hospital and have my hand sewn up.

When I was in second grade, I was playing tag with a friend. My friend and I were playing passionately. My friend was the tagger. So I ran away. Looking to the side, I ran. Then I hit my head on the pillar without seeing the pillar in front of me. My forehead was torn, and I went to the hospital and sewed the wound.

Like this, I'm serious about playing. Whatever I do, I like fun and exciting things. Why does Pororo like to play? There's a reason for everything. But as I got older, I started to change my mind about playing. All the time, playing without thinking, eating, laughing, sleeping didn't mean much to me anymore. These things didn't help me at all.

While thinking about this, I wondered about what to like and what to play. After a day and two days, my life became not a fun life, but a boring, vain life. It was no longer possible to enrich my life simply with activities for fun. Then I realized. When I had to do something I was not interested in, I was always losing myself by other things. When I was losing myself by other things, I had to try to get myself back. As soon as that effort was repeated by myself, I couldn't love myself and others. Also, as soon as I realized my delicacy, I couldn't love myself, you and us.

I have made numerous compromises in my 19 years of life. I tried to throw this away and create a new me. It is hard to give it all up but I could get a lot of new things by giving up.
Enjoy your life, and it will enrich your life.

2 FORGOTTEN MEMORIES

Part-Time Job

I started working part-time in the 6th grade of elementary school. When I saw my brother making pocket money from a part-time job, I started working part-time because I wanted to earn pocket money myself. My first part-time job when I was in 6th grade was passing out fliers advertising the restaurant, 'Our Taste Story.' To do this job, I climbed to the top of the villa or apartment and then came down putting fliers door to door. I got paid 6,000 won per hour. It was a time when 1,000 won was enough for students to buy something delicious. I have to be a middle school student to get a part-time job. So I lied about my age and started a part-time job in 6th grade. I didn't think of my part-time job as someone else's business and worked really hard like my own.

Before I worked part-time, I got pocket money from my parents. However, I felt sorry to receive an allowance from my parents when I saw both of my parents working hard after my father's company became difficult. So I worked harder at my part-time job and I wanted to do various things with the money I earned. I feel more responsible after working part-time. When I needed help, I thought about how to solve it on my own instead of asking someone for help, and I always tried to solve it on my own. Because I was young, most of the money I earned from work was used to eat, play, and buy clothes. But I have a habit of saving money since I was young, so I saved it sincerely. My savings were well spent when I really needed them. I'm grateful to everyone who took care of me when I didn't have any pocket money. So I don't forget that gratitude, and now I live by sharing my gratitude.

I still remember the first day of work. I started it with excitement. But my legs hurt so much because I repeatedly went up and down the stairs. But I worked harder because it was my first part-time job. At the thought of getting the money, I had no choice but to move my feet. 18,000 won earned from the part time job was enough to make me forget my exhausted legs. I was so happy to earn money by myself while working for the first time.

And I got a friend to work with when I was in the first grade of middle school. So far, there will be more than 20 to 30 people who have gone through the "Our Taste Story" company due to me.

The third is the first traffic accident in my life. I've never had a traffic accident in my life. So I was curious about the traffic accident. I thought a lot about traffic accidents such as 'I want to have a traffic accident like I saw in the movie.', 'If I get hospitalized in a car accident on my way to school, a lot of friends will come to visit, right?' The day I had a car accident was a rainy day. In order not to miss the train, the manager drove fast. As a result, the car slipped in the rain. The car was hit on both sides, but no one was seriously injured. It was fortunate that there were no cars in front and behind. I thought a car accident was a simple accident, but after one accident, I realized that it was really dangerous. So I will not think 'I want to have a car accident' in the future.

The second part-time job I did was serving at a restaurant. I worked as a serving part-timer when I was in the second grade of middle school. That job was also recommended by my brother. I worked part-time at a restaurant called Aengjasanjang. Aengjasanjang was in the valley. So I had to work in the valley. Baeksuk is the main menu in Aengjasanjang. Chicken was boiled in a cauldron to make baeksuk. So my clothes smelled of a cauldron when I finished my part-time job. It smelled bad. I ate a lot of baeksuk while working at Aengjasanjang. So I hate baeksuk now. I made the most money when I did this part-time job. The tip culture, which is rarely found in Korea, was very active there. When I received the most tips, it was more than 70,000 won a day. When I got a tip, the efficiency of my work changed. I woke up at that moment. All part-timers will sympathize with what tips mean to part-timers.

My third part-time job was also passing out fliers. The flier company was named Direct. While working part-time at Direct, I had to put a Direct flier in the mailbox of every houses all day. I distributed flyers for about 10 hours a day. It was so boring, so hard, so boring. But I did my best. There was an aunt who worked with me, and she came to work every day even if she was sick and tired. And she worked harder than anyone else. I was curious. "Wouldn't she be able to take a day off from work? Why is she working so hard?" So I asked her. But the aunt replied to me, "I don't have a choice to work or not. I just have to." This answer made me think a lot. While pursuing only too comfortable things, I reflected on my comfortable life.

I learned, gained, and realized so many things while working part-time. In order to give someone a part-time job, there should be trust between the one who hires and the worker who gets paid. Isn't there a saying, "Do everything like it's my job"? The same goes for part-time jobs. We have to work part-time like I'm the boss. Then it's a good thing for the boss, but it'll come back to me, too. Most people in the world live really hard. I also feel passion when I see people like that. And I feel grateful. With the money I saved from my part-time job, I gave it to my parents, donated it, and bought food for my friends. It was good to be able to spend money on something meaningful.

3 FORGOTTEN MEMORIES

Relationship

Relationships begin with people and end with people. Something that someone starts inevitably influences someone. I want to talk about my personality and my personal relationships. I like humans. And I hate humans. When I was young, I didn't think it was necessary to have relationships with all humans. And I thought that I want to live only with the people I love for the rest of my life. But all these thoughts I had as a child were impossible thoughts. As long as I live on Earth, that is impossible. As I got older, I realized. And as I got older, I experienced a lot. When I was in middle school, I was a very selfish person. So, it was more important to think of myself first than to be considerate of others. It was easier to think of myself than to think of others. And I thought it was normal. But when I tried to take care of myself, no one else took care of me. When I didn't think of anyone else, everyone didn't think of me. There is a very precious experience for me, who was selfish. I've shown a lot of selfishness. My friends who have been watching this did not like to play with me. So I watched my friends leave me one by one. I thought thinking about me first was the way to protect me. But if I tried to protect myself, I couldn't protect myself. When you're trying to get what you want, if you're ahead of your mind, you'll never get what you want. Of course you can get it, but you'll lose something else. When I lost something so precious, I started letting go of the things I held tightly in my hands in my life one by one. From being selfish to being considerate of others, I gradually changed little by little. I only thought of myself, but I tried to think of others first. So, my friends came to me again, and I was able to maintain my relationship more comfortably.

People around me often tell me, "I envy you. I want to be comfortable with everyone like you," "I should have been born extroverted," and "I want to stop being stressed out in relationships." Whenever that happened, there was something I wanted to say.

The person you envy must have worked hard to get in that position. They must have fought with various people and been hurt by many. That's why they were able to create the ability to cope with such situations, and they were bound to be more adept at human relationships than others. If you envy them, try to experience more people, too. Then I'm sure you'll be able to grow up more. I also always have been thinking about relationships. I'm the same. I get hurt every time, and I get angry every time. But I'm trying not to express it. I try to think a lot. I think a lot of things. But I try to be careful when I say that idea. If you don't tell others what you think, you won't hurt other people's hearts or do harm to others. So be sure to think before you speak. I'm trying really hard these days, too.

I want to talk about the contents of the book, 'How To Win Friends Influence People Theory' that I am reading these days. I want to share the contents of this book with you because it is the book that I am receiving the most help with these days. Before I read this book, I liked to build relationships, but I always avoided relationships that I couldn't handle. If I could have avoided it, I avoided it. But now I don't want to avoid relationships any more. So I started reading this book.

In this book, the author says that the ability to handle people is a commodity that can be bought and sold with money, like sugar or coffee. This one sentence made me think a lot. If it's a product that you can buy with money, you can definitely improve it if you try, and if you decide, you can be like the person you're envious of.

Fundamental Techniques In Handling People

If You Want to Gather Honey, Don't Kick Over the Beehive

"but let us judge not, that we be not judged" is Lincoln's motto. These words also appear in the Bible. Matthew 7:1 to 2 said, "Do not judge, or you too will be judged. For in the same way you judge others, you will be judged, and with the measure you use, it will be measured to you." Why shouldn't I judge others? Usually when a person is judged, the person who hears the referee cannot feel good. So judging others is no different from starting to fight others. Is fighting a good thing? That is absolutely not the case. When you have a fight, the winner and the loser are always divided. Fighting is not a game. Winning doesn't give you anything. You'll be able to feel good for a while, then However, the feeling never lasts long. So what does the winner of the fight get? Can't get nothing. Nothing can be gained from fighting. Win or lose, nothing gains. That's why the more you avoid fighting, the better. Confucius said, "Don't blame the snow on the roof of your neighbor's house when the porch of your house is dirty." There is a similar saying in the Bible. Luke 6:42 said, "How can you say to your brother, 'Brother, let me take the speck out of your eye,' when you yourself fail to see the plank in your own eye? You hypocrite, first take the plank out of your eye, and then you will see clearly to remove the speck from your brother's eye."

In other words, we need to look back on ourselves first. Don't criticize, condemn or complain. Robert Browning said, "When the fight begins within himself, a man's worth something." When I think about criticizing or judging others, I try to think in my mind first and try not to think like that. What I said could be a pleasant answer for me in that situation, but the answer is by no means the right answer. It could be wrong. But you don't have to stick with what might be wrong.

The Big Secret of Dealing with People

It is said that there is only one secret that moves people in this world. It's what makes the person want to do it. Forced methods always bring about a bad backlash. So we shouldn't try to force a relationship. It is to make the person need me so that he can find me on his own. This book tells you to give honest sincere appreciation. Every human being likes praise. No one hates praise. It is said that the strongest of human nature is the desire to be recognized by others. Almost everyone craves this heart, but few people satisfy it. So, only those who can do this can capture the hearts of others. There are a lot of things that teachers said while attending Dreamy School. "If you want to be loved, love someone else first." If you want to be respected, respect others first. Human relationships are the same thing. If I satisfy what others want first, that person will come to me.

He Who Can Do This Has the Whole World with Him.

Henry Ford, the car king, talked about the technology of human relationships. "If there is any one secret of success, it lies in the ability to get the other person's point of view and see things from that person's angle as well as from your own." Human relationships should not start with me and try to start something. You have to start with someone else and start something. In order to do that, we need to know well about others and arouse in the other person an eager want.

Six Ways to Make People Like You

Do This and You'll Be Welcome Anywhere

Adler said, "People who don't care about others suffer the most in their lives and hurt others the most. All human failures arise from this type of people." We need to think deeply about the meaning of these words. We have to live with interest in others as well as me. If you want to get a friend, you have to try to do something for others. You also have to greet people with a lively and active attitude. People are bound to be interested in the person who cares about them. So pay real attention to others.

A Simple Way to Make a Good Impression

This is what a personnel manager of a large department store in New York said to the author. He said, "I would hire a saleswoman who didn't even graduate from elementary school if she had a beautiful smile, rather than a doctor of philosophy with a blunt expression." Smile! People say that you cannot spit on a smiley face. What to do when you don't want to laugh? There are two ways. First, force yourself to smile. When alone, whistle or hum. Second, you can act as if you are too happy to know what to do. Then you will feel really happy.

"There is nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so."

– William Shakespeare

"Most folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be."

– Abraham Lincoln

If You Don't Do This, You Are Headed for Trouble

Remember that a man's name is to him the sweetest and most important sound in the English language.

An Easy Way to Become a Good Conversationalist

Always have to think that my story is next. And be a good listener.
Encourage others to talk about themselves.

How to Interest People

The way to win over a person's heart is to make a topic of conversation about the problem that the other person is most interested in. So if you want to be liked by the other person, talk in terms of the other man's interests.

How To Make People Like You Instantly

Make the other person feel important and do it sincerely.

Twelve Ways to Win People To Your Way of Thinking

You Can't Win an Argument

The only way to get the best of an argument is to avoid it.

A Sure Way of Making Enemies—and How to Avoid It

Don't hurt other people's feelings. Show respect for the other man's opinions. Never tell a man he is wrong.

If You're Wrong, Admit It

Fight and you don't get enough, but yield and you get more than you expect. If you are wrong, admit it quickly and emphatically.

The High Road to a Man's Reason

When someone makes you angry, you will definitely feel better after say whatever comes to mind to that person. But the other party is not. The other party may also prepare a quick blow. Lincoln said, "It is an old and true maxim that 'a drop of honey catches more flies than a gallon of gall.'" So if you want to convince others, begin in a friendly way.

The Secret of Socrates

When talking to a person, you should not make a topic of disagreement from the beginning. Starting with the issue where both sides agree, the story should be continued while emphasizing it. Get the other person saying "yes, yes" immediately.

The Safety Valve in Handling Complaints

When you try to persuade the other person, you often talk only to yourself. Make the other person talk. He knows a lot more about what he's doing or what's wrong than you know. So ask him a question and induce him to tell you a lot.

How to Get Cooperation

Let the other fellow feel that the idea is his.

A Formula That Will Work Wonders for You

Other people's ideas may be completely wrong. But remember that the other person doesn't think he's wrong. Don't blame them. Try to understand them. Look at things from the other person's point of view

What Everybody Wants

Every human being craves empathy. Therefore be sympathetic with the other person's ideas and desires.

An Appeal That Everybody Likes

Even those who try to deceive you will react favorably if you see him as an honest, straight, and fair person. Therefore, Appeal to the nobler motors.

The Movies Do It. Radio Does It. Why Don't You Do It?

Dramatize your ideas.

When Nothing Else Works, Try This

Throw down a challenge.

Nine Ways to Change People Without Giving Offense or Arousing Resentment.

If You Must Find Fault, This Is the Way to Begin
Begin with praise and honest appreciation.

How to Criticize—and Not Be Hated for It
Call attention to people's mistakes indirectly.

Talk About Your Own Mistakes First
Talk about your own mistakes before criticizing the other.

No One Likes to Take Orders
Ask questions instead of giving direct orders. Let the other person save face.

How to Spur People on to Success
Praise the slightest improvement and praise every improvement. Be "hearty in your approbation and lavish in your praise."

How to Spur People on to Success
Give a man a fine reputation to live up to. Make the Fault Seem Easy to Correct Use encouragement. Make the fault you want to correct seem easy to correct; make the thing you want the other person to do seem easy to do.

Making People Glad to Do What You Want
Make the other person happy about doing the thing you suggest.

Letters That Produced Miraculous Results

People want praise and recognition. And you have to keep in mind that people are going to do anything to get it. But no one wants hypocrisy and flattery. Give praise and recognition from the heart. That's how it works. As Adler said, "All problems are interpersonal relationship problems." There is nothing more important to us as social animals than relationships. If you understand all the contents of this book and act, there will be no problems in future relationships. However, the fatal flaw of self-help books is that you forget it when you turn around. That is why the author of this book is aware of this fact, and at the beginning of the book, he says, "We recommend that you read each chapter thoroughly and repeatedly". To summarize the core of the book, Every human being has a desire to be an important person. So everyone wants to be respected. People don't want anyone to point it out or ignore it, and I want someone to praise or acknowledge it. If you want to be friendly, give the impression that you've become an important person. In addition, praise, don't blame, and laugh. It's something that everyone knows. But the problem is not to do it even though you know it. Many people don't listen to others properly, don't react properly, and get angry even if it's a little frustrating. However, if you want your opponent to do as I say, you have to make him feel like an important person.

Reading this book, I was surprised. I already knew everything in the book. However, as the author of this book said, I was not living by practicing what was written in the book. Even if I practiced once in a while, I didn't live by practicing every day. I liked to criticize, and I have criticized others a lot. At the same time, I think I wanted someone else to look at me in a good way. It's not enough time to praise others, but I think I just hated others. As I read this book, I have tried not to tell others everything I have in my mind. Often I think, "I could be wrong." My words could never be the answer to everything. A lot of what I say may be wrong.

I want to introduce Lincoln's anecdote. In the American Civil War, a situation occurred in which the Confederates retreated. Then Lincoln ordered General Meade to hit the Confederates. However, General Mead hesitated and missed the opportunity. If General Mead had followed the order, the war could have ended quickly. So Lincoln wrote a letter to General Meade. Lincoln liked to criticize. So he started writing letters with various contents of criticism. However, the letter was not delivered to General Meade. Lincoln wrote a letter but didn't send it. Lincoln knew that if he had sent this letter to General Meade, nothing positive would have happened.

Reading Lincoln's anecdote made me think a lot. Words of criticism can never produce good results.

‘When you relate to people, remember that people are not logical animals. We have to deal with emotional animals full of prejudice, driven by pride and vanity. Criticism sparks dangerous sparks. This flame causes a powder called pride to explode, and the explosion sometimes accelerates death.'

– How To Win Friends Influence People

At first I didn't understand why people told me to listen. I thought listening is important, but speaking is also important. But looking back on what I said, it was mostly meaningless. If I had heard what other people said, I would have learned more and gained more. I was always in charge of talking, not listening. But now I'm starting to change little by little. Now I'm trying to be in charge of listening rather than speaking.

The book features a businessman named Charles Schwab. When he took office, everyone who worked there became Superman or Superwoman, and the company was on a roll. People asked him what the secret was. He replied, "I think the ability to arouse enthusiasm among my subordinates is the best asset I have. Recognition and encouragement are the ways to bring out a person's best abilities. Nothing kills ambition more than criticism from a superior. "

Serious wounds, whether human or object, cannot be erased. You may have to try more to heal the wound than you have ever tried.

There is another memorable episode. It was an anecdote of President Roosevelt. An employee who worked in the office asked President Roosevelt if he knew quail. She said she had seen quail eggs, but never quail. So President Roosevelt explained about quail to his employee in great detail. Over time, one day President Roosevelt called in an employee and said, "Look out the window, there's a quail you wanted to see." She came to admire President Roosevelt for taking an interest in her interests. In addition, President Roosevelt went to the White House after his retirement, and he held hands with everyone inside the White House and asked them how they were doing. So President Roosevelt was remembered as a person who was liked by everyone.

In order to gain favor with others, you should pay attention to the other person's interests, not just to my interests.

– How To Win Friends Influence People

Everybody is selfish. The most important person in the world to everyone is oneself. When everyone is selfish, an altruistic act can be liked by people.

If you want enemies, get ahead of your friends. If you want friends, make sure they become better people than you.

– How To Win Friends Influence People

Our society has been taught constantly to compete and win. But wouldn't it be a much better world if we had a mindset of caring, forgiving, listening, and embracing once?

Forgotten Memories

Written by / Haneum Oh

Publish on / July 2022

Published in / English Writing Class, Dreamy School

Instructor / Sarah Yu

Tel / 041-557-0179

Email / dreamy@dreamyedu.net

sarahyu@dreamyedu.net

Address / 89, Bonghang-ro, Byeongcheon-myeon, Dongnam-gu, Cheonan-si, Chungcheongnam-do